Executive Summary

NimbleNest Creative is submitting a lean, senior-led proposal covering the full service scope. Our model is intentionally compact and cost-conscious, with a strong emphasis on speed, but it does not rely on the same depth of integrated infrastructure as larger network agencies.

Agency Overview

NimbleNest is an independent strategy and creative studio built for fast-turn launches where a small senior team stays close to the work. We collaborate with specialist production, media, and regulatory partners when needed, and the client typically works with a compact leadership group rather than a large program office.

Our Pitch

Our proposed campaign territory, Small Wins, Strong Days, is designed to be emotionally warm, easy to explain, and flexible across film and short-form content. We would prioritize clarity, fast decision cycles, and a practical level of production ambition.

Delivery Team Snapshot

- Priya Nair, Business Director: lead contact, commercial owner, and client escalation point.
- Aakash Bedi, Strategy and Creative Lead: campaign territory, messaging, and creative supervision.
- Tara Joseph, Producer: film and content delivery coordination.
- LexBridge Regulatory Advisors: external specialist partner for product claims review.

Selected Relevant Work

- Fast-turn youth beverage campaign developed with a lean internal team and external compliance counsel.
- Compact digital-first launch for a family nutrition brand with one hero concept and rapid adaptation assets.
- Mid-size content system for a wellness brand delivered with a small senior team and partner network.

Questionnaire Responses

q_child_compliance | Child marketing compliance

Question: Select one option for your capability to support child-directed advertising compliance across launch assets and approvals: (a) Yes - delivered by our organisation, (b) Yes - delivered through a named specialist partner, or (c) No. If you select (b), provide the partner name.

Response: Option selected: (a) Yes - delivered by our organisation. NimbleNest will handle child-directed advertising review through our internal strategy and creative leadership with a simple review checklist.

q_claims_review | Claims review capability

Question: Select one option for your capability to support product claims review for launch assets and related approvals: (a) Yes - delivered by our organisation, (b) Yes - delivered through a named specialist partner, or (c) No. If you select (b), provide the partner name.

Response: Option selected: (b) Yes - delivered through a named specialist partner. Named specialist partner: LexBridge Regulatory Advisors.

q_launch_governance | Launch governance and speed

Question: Provide your proposed launch governance and approval-management plan for this scope, including key milestones, critical path, approval routing, escalation approach, and the actions you will take to protect the stated launch calendar.

Response: Our governance approach would stay intentionally light. We would hold one weekly buyer check-in, keep a shared action spreadsheet, and move work forward through direct communication between Priya Nair and the buyer marketing lead. We would expect the team to align quickly on one preferred creative route so that approvals remain efficient. While we would note the main milestones in a working plan, we are not proposing a formal approval board, a detailed critical-path tracker, or separate escalation forums by workstream. If timing comes under pressure, our main recovery action would be to reduce rounds and simplify the content package rather than add governance layers.

q_integrated_delivery | Integrated delivery model

Question: Describe the operating model you will use to coordinate strategy, creative, TVC development and production, organic social, paid media planning and buying, compliance review, and launch program management as one integrated launch program.

Response: NimbleNest would run the assignment through a small core team supported by specialist partners. Strategy and creative would sit with our internal studio, production would be coordinated by one producer, paid media would be managed by a buying partner, and claims review would sit with LexBridge. The model is straightforward and senior-led, but the buyer would likely interact with more than one specialist stream over the course of the assignment because we are not proposing a full central PMO layer. Our strength is agility rather than a heavily integrated operational structure.

q_campaign_solution | Campaign solution quality

Question: Describe your proposed global launch solution across strategy, messaging, creative territory, TVC, organic social, and paid social/video, showing how the workstreams connect into one launch campaign.

Response: Our proposed solution uses Small Wins, Strong Days as a simple, uplifting idea showing the product as part of ordinary family routines. We would focus the TVC on one warm, easy-to-understand story and then extend it into a compact social toolkit. The message system would stay fairly high level rather than highly segmented because we believe the launch should feel accessible and easy to approve. Paid and organic activation would share the same central creative route, but we are not proposing an especially detailed cross-channel architecture beyond that common idea.
